THE WEST VIRGINIANS

Who Went to Washington to Bar gain With Green Goods Men

NOW ARE LANGUISHING IN JAIL

And Will Remain There for Six Months-One of Them a County Commissioner of Braxton County A Pairmont Man Mixed Up in the Case-Ira Greathouse and J. O. Wheeler in an Unonviable Plight,

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 20 .- The two West Virginians, one of them an official of Braxton county, whose arrest was noted a few days ago, were sen tenced to jail here yesterday for six months for carrying concealed weapons. The trouble they are in grew out of their coming to the national capital to purchase "green goods" or counterfeit money. Ira Greathouse and J. O. Wheeler, of Hyer, Braxton county, are their names. The case was an interesting one and attracted considerable attention, Greathouse and Wheeler having claimed that they came here armed in order to protect themseves from the sharpers they expected to deal with.

There was a large audience in Judge Miller's court, and many who could not get in the court room, applied for admission, as they were anxious to hear the trial of the cases involving the charges of concealed weapons and suspicion against some of the parties to the alleged "green-goods" game. The men known as Alexander P. Hill and John R. Hickman, alias "Sponster," were in the dock, while the West Virginians, Ira Greathouse and J. O. Wheeler, occupied seats in the audience, having been released from custody on

Presecuting Attornery Mullowny first

Presecuting Attornery Mullowny first called the case of Alexander P. Hill, and Lawyer Sillers, who represented him, entered a plea of not guilty. Policemen Mendenhall and Kimmell were present to tell of the arrest without going into detail concerning the "green goods" game. The pistol was shown, as were the cartridges. When taken from him the pistol was not loaded, but he had a round of cartridges in his pocket. The pistol was a centrefire weapon, while he had rim-fire cartridges.

The prisoner, a good-natured looking The prisoner, a good-natured looking an, who weighs fully 200 pounds, and who has the scar of a pistol shot wound in his arm, got on the stand to say something in his own behalf. He seemed very much worried, and answered only such questions as his counsel told him to answer, showing that he had separating he desired to coinsel told him to answer, showing that he had something he desired to hide. But he was frank enough to admit that he came here in relation to the "green goods" business, although he claimed that he came to see and hear of the game and not to operate it. "I wanted to see the 'green goods,' "he said, 'and did not intend to buy any,

as I had no money."

The pistol, he said, he bought in a store either in Washington or Georgetown, he did not exactly know which, as this is his first visit here, and he is not acquainted with locations.

"Where do you' live?" he was asked.
"Fairmont, West Virginia," he an-

Mr. Mullowny here produced a letter Mr. Mullowny here produced a letter taken from the prisoner, which purported to have been written by a man named Boyd, and addressed to another member of the same family. This letter contained information about the issue of $35,000 worth of "green goods." The prisoner was asked about the letter, and he said it was given to him by a man whom he supposed was one of the Boyds. a man whom he supposed was one of the Boyds.

By direction of his counsel, the de-fendant declined to answer several ques-

Counsel then attacked the proof. Counsel then attacked the proof claiming that the weapon, being unloaded, did not come within the provisions of the law, and he also claimed that the information was defective, in that it charged a pistol and not a re-

THE CHARGE.

These exceptions were promptly overruled, and after argument Judge Miller proceeded to charge the jury. In his charge the judge read the law and dwelt upon the fact that the absence of cartridges in the weapon did not affect the case. There was only one excep-tion under the law which he might tion under the law which he might claim, and that was the provision allowing the carrying home of a weapon directly after its purchase as a matter of merchandise. And the court told the jurors that if they found from the proot that such were the facts in the case they should acquit.

It took the jury just about one minute to reach the conclusion that the defendant was guilty as charged, and counsel gave notice of a motion for a new trial.

Mr. Mullowny next called the case of Hickman, and the weapon charged in the information was a blackjack or slungshot.

In opening the case, however, the prosecuting officer exhibited two of the weapons charged and also a pistol. One of the blackjacks was filled with cotton and the other with shot.

Mr. Greathouse was the first witness called and he told of his visit here in connection with the "green goods" game, as heretofore published, and then went on to detail the movements of the quartette while in this city. The "green goods" question was first suggested by quartette while in this city. The "green goods" question was first suggested by the defendant Hickman, and in answer the defendant Hickman, and in answer to Judge Miller's question he said he came here with the understanding that he was to get $7,000 for $500. He understood that the $7,000 was to be in good money. One night he said Hickman had $350 of his money.

"Did you come here for the purpose of delive in the "green goods" man?"

of doing up the 'green-goods' man?"

Mr. Sillers asked the witness.

"That doesn't make any difference,"
was the West Virginian's response.

"Are you a county commissioner of Braxton county?"

"I am"

"And have something to do with the financial condition of the county," remarked counsel. "I suppose times must be hard up there."

FILLED WITH COTTON. The hotel clerk at the Hotel Slater was called and he said he saw in Hickman's pocket what appeared to be a alungshot.

Policeman Mendenhall was called and he testified that when he arrested Hickman he found in his pocket the cotton-filled slungshot.

The daugerous character of the al-loged weapon was discussed, and the officer said he thought it was used as a blind, and it is not properly a slung-shot.

Mr. Mullowny attempted to show that Mr. Mullowny attempted to snow anathe alleged weapon might be used with sand-bag effect, but Lawyer Sillers said it was no such weapon, and he said no one could be injured with it.

"I would like to know something of the uses of this thing," said Judge Miller.

"That's absurd," said Lawyer Sillers,

"I think the man had it at home for his children to play with."

Mr. Mullowny said he would call witnesses to give evidence as to the nature and uses of the alleged weapon and the court took a recess. AFTER RECESS.

After recess the witness Greathouse was recalled, and Judge Miller informed him that he had not told the onehim that he had not told the onefifteenth part of the facts in the case, and asked him for the whole story. He then started out and repeated that he expected to get $7,000 in good money from the "green goods" men, and after telling his story in brief he came down to the question of weapons. On this he had vary little to say.

It was explained that there was a charge of concealed weapons against him, and the court advised him that he would not have to answer anything that would erminate himself.

would criminate himself.

When J. O. Wheeler was next called he made an open statement of the whole affair and attempted to conceal nothing. "I came here to buy 'green goods,'"

"I came here to buy 'green goods,""
he answered.
"Money?"
"Yes, sir."
"Good money?"
"Oh, yes."
Witness then explained that he intended that there should be no changing of satchels, and if he once got the $7,000 in his possession he intended to hold on to it.

hold on to it.

When questioned by the court he said he now believed that Hisckman intended to use the padded leather on the "green-goods" man should it become necessary to fight.

necessary to fight.
Judge Millier taking in the situation
asked: "Then you believe Hickman was going to deceive you?"
"Yes, sir, that's what I think now." asked:

ALL HE EXPECTED. "What brought you here?"

"They wanted me to come along," he answered, "and I came. I wanted to see the town anyhow."

Witness explained that Hickman had shown him a genuine blackjack, and said he was going to "stand off" the "green goods" men with it. He denied that he had ever been out on such an expedition before.

Hickman, he said, had shown him the shot-filled weapons at both the Howard House and liotel Stater.

"Have you been up the road?"

Wheeler was asked.
"I have "was his anayer.

"I have," was his answer.
"For what?"
"Shooting with intent to kill."
"Where was that?"
"In Columbus, Ohio."

Was the man at whom you shot a policeman? "lie was."

"Are you not sore?" Mr. Sillors asked.
"Sore?" echoed Wheeler, "not a bit
fit. The thing turned out just as I hought it would. I've had my trip to Washington, or nearly all of it, and that's about all I expected." CASE CLOSED.

Witness said that he once saw the prisoner have the heavy blackjack in his pocket while on the street. Witness Greathouse was recalled and examined, but nothing new was elicited, and the government's case was closed.

Under the testimony of Wheeler, the court excluded the "dammy" from the case, and the government relied upon the proof given by Wheeler concerning the dangerous weapon.

The defense had no evidence to offer,

The defense had no evidence to offer, but counsel argued, the case.

Wheeler and Greathouse were then arraigned for concealed weapons. The former was charged with having had a platol, and, it was charged, was armed with a blackjack. When arraigned, they plead guilty, and explained how and wny they were armed.

They were sentenced to jail each for six months.

The jury acquitted Hickman, and the judge expressed quite emphatically his

THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

The New Party and Its Platform -- A Cor respondent Submits Some Practical

To the Editor of the Intelligen

Sin:-And so, Mr. Editor, we are to have a new party, organized with "the money question as the indisputably dominant issue in the United Statesthe issue between the gold standard, gold bonds and bank currency, on the one side, and the bi-metallic standard. one study and government currency, on the other;" pledzed to "the unrestricted coinage, by the United States independ-ent of any foreign nower, of both gold and silver into standard money, at the ratio of 16 to 1, and upon terms of exact equality-the silver coin to be full legal equality—the silver coin to be full legal tender, equal with gold, for all debts and due, public and private;" and that "all currency (paper) intended to circu-late as money should be issued and its volume controlled by the general gov-ernment only, and should be legal ten-der."

ernment only, and should be legal tender."
First—The term, "A bi-metalic standard," as used with respect to coinage and carrency, means (if it means anything) that the unit value of the two metals used shall be and continue intrinsically equal, but this new party decrees that 60 cents worth of silver shall be upon "terms of exact equality," with 100 cents worth of sold. At the present price of silver, the ratio, to bring the two metals upon an "equality," would be about 26 2-3 to 1. The saving clause in the platform of the new party is that "the silver coin shall be full legal tender, equal with gold, for all debts and dues, public and private." But how about the purchasing power? They do not—cannot—guarantee us that the purchasing power of 60 cents worth of silver shall be equal to the purchasing power of 100 cents worth of gold, if the responsibility of the government to maintain their equality ceases with the coinage.

coinage. I will not, in this paper, discuss the effect of the free and unlimited coinage of silver, at any ratio, by the United States alone, with the intimate commercial relations of the control of th States alone, with the intimate commercial relations existing between us and all the important nations of the world. Nothing keeps the purchasing power of the standard silver dollar to-day, and among ourselves, at par with that of the gold dollar, but the policy—amounting to a pledge—of the government to maintain its equality; and we have recently experienced the strain upon the government to do this; weakened, as it has been during this administration by unbeen during this administration by unwise, and lack of necessary, legislation resulting in disaster to the treasury and an increase in the public debt of $162,-000,000 in two years, and more to come. With the fluctuations in the prices of the precious metals—especially silver— there can be no bi-metallic standard apart from governmental obligation to apart from governmental obligation to maintain it. Remove this obligation, and if silver to the value of a gold dollar were put into the silver to-day, and to morrow it were worth live cents less, it would lose five cents of its purchasing power, and we would be on a gold standard with silver at 5 per cent discount, or on a silver stand with gold at 5 per cent premium; and if worth 5 cents more, we would be on a gold standard with silver at 5 per cent premium, or upon a silver standard with gold at 5 per cent discount.

The standard silver dollar is now "full legal tender, equal with gold for all debts and dues, public and private," and also has the same purchasing power, at the ratio of 16 to 1, a bimetalic standard "maintained by this government independent of any foreign ernment independent of any foreign power," but at a stauding fearful risk to ornment independent of any foreign power," but at a statisling fearful risk to the treasury and cost to the taxpayers of the country. Are we not now near enough to the danger line?

Second—But this new party proposes to go much further than this, and would have "all currency (paper) intended to circulate as money issued, and its volumne controlled by the general government, and it should be legal tender." If this means any change from the character of the paper now in use, it can mean nothing else or less than fiat money—that the paper be irrodeemable—stamped "This is a Dollar," instead of (as now) "The United States will pay one dollar on demand." &c. If the notes are to be promises to pay, they must be redeemable in gold, or in silver kept at par with gold by being redeomable, itself in gold, as at present. It was estimated upon the passage of the resumption act that a gold reserve of $100,000,000 in the treasury would be required to keep $342,000,000 greenbacks at par. We have now about $1,200,000,000,000 of paper currency in the country, and if this be all changed into green. at par. We have now about $1,200,000, 000 of paper currency in the country, and if this be all changed into green and if this be all changed into green-backs, at the rates above stated, it would require a gold reserve in the treasury of $350,000,000.

But I think it is very evident that the new party does not propose to make its paper currency redeemable in anything, and yet to make it "full legal tender."

The grant-backs were opiningly invested. and yet to make it "full legal tender." The greenbacks were originally issued as promises to be paid in gold. But with the resources of the country behind this pledge of the government, a greeenback dollar in 1864 had the purchasing power of only 35 cents, only because the treasury had temporarily suspended against any way under cause the treasury had temporarily sus-pended specie payments, or was under protest. Now, Mr. Editor, I will give your readers this question in proportion to work out: If 100 cents in greenbacks payable in gold fell, on account of the treasury being temporarily under pro-test, to 35 cents, what would be the pur-chasing power of a bit of paper upon which the government should print: "This is a Dollar?" Can anyone work out any other answer than a very small "This is a Dollar?" Can anyone work out any other answer than a very small o? If so I would like to see the solu-Buckhannan, W.
